2019 - 2020
Dear Friends of the Community Foundation of North Central Massachusetts,

Our goals, as we began the program year 2019-2020, seemed evident: broaden our knowledge of the challenges and opportunities within the region, deepen our impact and strengthen our reputation across North Central Massachusetts. With our first full time Chief Executive, we were poised to professionalize our operations in a way we had been unable to in the past.

We concentrated first on our most vital function - grant-making, developing a new approach that we hoped would be more proficient while at the same time, would inspire engagement. Then the calamity of COVID hit, testing us and our process in ways none of us could have anticipated. Within five months, we had distributed over $1 million to nearly 60 nonprofit organizations. Along the way we built a solid reputation as an important part of the North Central Massachusetts safety net.

The demands of the pandemic caused us to engage with the numerous organizations that deliver essential services across the region. It became apparent that we needed to rapidly identify ways to further streamline our grant-making process and dramatically increase the efficiency of both our financial management and distribution systems. With the active support of our Board of Directors and the dedication of our staff and partners, the Community Foundation was able to adjust to the new COVID realities as well as play a meaningful role in limiting the economic, physical and emotional harm visited on our neighbors by the pandemic.

As a vital partner in fighting the pandemic, the Community Foundation gained valuable knowledge about the nature of need in our region. We learned where the holes were in the system of support, and where there were opportunities to improve. We also gained an appreciation for our role as convener, organizer and honest broker in addressing region-wide problems.

This Annual Report offers a brief look back at 2019-2021. As we adjust to the changes wrought by the pandemic and the continuing demands of prolonged emergency grant-making, we look forward to building the relationships that will allow the Community Foundation to deepen its ability to enhance the quality of life in North Central Massachusetts.

Jan Cochrin
Board Chair
Before the COVID-19 pandemic shut down the world, the Community Foundation’s nonprofit partners were helping enhance the quality of life in North Central Massachusetts. Our 2019 grants to nonprofits contributed to a wide variety of community-enhancing initiatives. Just a few examples are offered here.

Our community development partners strengthened the business eco-systems in the Montachusett and North Quabbin areas. Specifically, NewVue Communities CDC achieved project-friendly zoning for the Fitchburg Arts Community, an important step in moving that innovative downtown development project forward. Additionally, the Center for Women Enterprise (CWE) provided valuable seminars and guidance to 20 entrepreneurs in Orange and Athol and built relationships with important local institutions including Athol Credit Union, Orange Innovation Center and the Launch Center.

Our grant support helped regional natural resource nonprofits strengthen their engagement with North Central residents. For example, Mass Audubon’s Wachusett Meadow Wildlife Sanctuary educators brought hands-on, nature-based play and learning to Gardner Head Start, with projects ranging from exploring the schoolyard to learning about birds and wildlife. Pre-COVID-19 plans also called for guided family hikes at Lake Wampanoag Wildlife Sanctuary. Meanwhile, the Nashua River Watershed Association Stewardship Council was formally established with broad community participation, and important river resource study and coordination work among the 11 member communities was accomplished. Our grant helped carry the Council through a vulnerable transition that will allow the Council to be more self-sustaining, enabling it to protect this valuable restored natural resource.

Our impact also extended to social services and educational access initiatives. Community Legal Aid was able to open a full-time office in North Central Massachusetts, which enabled them to provide valuable training seminars to service providers across the region on topics such as elder rights, immigration status, family services and domestic violence. In addition, Community Legal Aid was better able to provide legal services to North Central clients most in need, including a mother fighting to regain custody of her child from an abusive father. Meanwhile, educational access scholarship grants to Mount Wachusett Community College allowed 32 students to attend community college, including 23 first generation college students.

Most nonprofits were dramatically hindered when the pandemic struck. Our first response to the emergency was to waive grant restrictions on any outstanding 2019 grants, allowing nonprofits to direct any remaining dollars to their bottom lines.

Fund Spotlight

Von Loesecke Family Charitable Fund

When Peter and Alice von Loesecke sought to lend a hand to local organizations that help people in need, they knew right where to turn: the Community Foundation.

The von Loesecke family had previously established a fund with the Community Foundation that provided scholarships for international students.

“We found the Foundation to be professional and great to work with. It is well connected to local organizations and, as such, it was our number one choice when we shifted our charitable giving focus to a more local geographic area,” says von Loesecke.

In January 2020, the family established the von Loesecke Family Charitable Fund with the Community Foundation. The fund supports organizations that help people improve themselves, offer unique educational opportunities, or offer educational enrichment. “We have always believed in community service and involvement,” says Loesecke. “We hope that through our giving, people in the area who are trying to change their circumstances or redirect their lives will be able to succeed.”
Facing Covid-19

The Community Foundation entered 2020 full of energy and expectation. We were excited to try out our new approach to grant-making, to plan the renovation of the building at 649 John Fitch Highway, and invigorate our development efforts. Then the Covid hit.

With a global pandemic changing life as we know it, we set out to develop funds to try to respond to the challenge. The Critical Needs Committee had responded to crises before, but this was new. The Board allocated an initial $45,000 from our Critical Needs Fund to a Covid Response Fund, and we worked to grow it. Staff went about the task of creating a simple and accessible on-line grant application process, and we reached out to the nonprofit community working to figure out how to buffer the effects of the pandemic on the people of North Central Massachusetts.

Through the generosity of North Central fund holders and of others across the region and the state, the COVID response dollars grew. Our Critical Needs Committee began meeting weekly to review applications and award grants to food pantries, homeless services, senior centers, hospitals and social service agencies. With much of the physical world shut down, we adopted on-line approaches to executing grant agreements and distributing grant checks. From April to the end of the summer we more than $1 million in 87 grants to 60 nonprofits. And the pandemic was not half over.

Our Partners in Fighting the COVID Crisis

The hardest work was being done by our nonprofit grantee partners. They were delivering food to the growing number of homeless; providing food and financial support to families who found themselves without work and without income; delivering food and other essentials to seniors isolated from their friends and family; supplying protective gear to medical staff and outreach workers; and treating the unseen psychological scars inflicted on elder care workers on the front lines of the pandemic. A few examples are offered here.

United Way of North Central Mass
Coordinating financial supports

UWNCM was critical to our ability to get financial assistance to families hardest hit by the pandemic. The Community Foundation traditionally is less involved in social service programming. The leadership and coordinating competency of the United Way early in the pandemic gave the Community Foundation the breathing space to get up to speed with social service providers, senior centers and food pantries. Without their help, we would not have been able to perform as well as we ultimately did in delivering aid to families and individuals in need.

North Central Mass Faith Based Community Coalition
Food for unaccompanied homeless adults

NCMBCC has done an extraordinary job supporting the homeless population in our region, despite the sharp rise in their number. As the COVID crisis forced facilities to close that the homeless use to maintain...
Facing Covid-19, a modicum of dignity (showers, bathrooms), NCMFBCC worked with local organizations to help ensure options were available. Their outreach workers’ efforts were instrumental in connecting needed people to food and essentials.

Growing Places, Inc.
Healthy Food

Growing Places was able to quickly expand their operations into several new communities to meet the rising demand for food. They collaborated with a variety of food pantries and food distribution programs to help ensure that the rapid increase in demand for food was accompanied by fresh produce. They have played an important coordinating role during the pandemic.

Alliance Health at Baldwinville
Keeping seniors safe

Our grant allowed Alliance Health to purchase PPE and other supplies necessary to the safe operation of their nursing home. Their professionalism and thoroughness allowed them to provide and exceptionally safe environment for their residents and staff, experience almost no cases of COVID-19. While other nursing homes in the area were hit hard by COVID-19, Alliance Health reported two cases.

Horace Mann Educational Assoc., Inc.
Residential and support services for people with disabilities.

HMEA acted decisively to protect their clients and workers. They anticipated problems and converted space into an isolation center. HMEA staff volunteered to work at the center to care for people quarantined there. As of Sept. 8, 443 COVID-19 tests have been administered within HMEA for both staff and the individuals with disabilities they serve. There have been 69 confirmed cases within the HMEA community, resulting in 10 admissions to the emergency isolation center, 12 hospital admissions, and no deaths, even though people with developmental disabilities living in group homes are four times more likely than the general population to contract the virus.
Advancing Our Communities

Targeted Grant Making

CFNCM has made changes in our competitive grant making schedule and process in the beginning of 2020. The revisions more clearly articulate our areas of focus, spread out our grant making across the year, bring more participants into the grant making process, and allow for more thoughtful consideration of grant proposals.

New Online Application Process

We have implemented a new online grant application program that has improved the process for both applicants and grant reviewers.

Stay Tuned for Open RFP

Keep an eye on www.cfncm.org throughout the year to connect your program needs to our focus areas.

Four Categories of Impact

Beginning in 2020, CFNCM organized our competitive grant making around four issue areas that better reflect our work of the past several years:

1. ENVIRONMENTAL PRESERVATION & ANIMAL WELFARE
   Deadline in January, awarded in April

2. CAREER READINESS & EDUCATIONAL ACCESS
   Deadline in March, awarded in July

3. COMMUNITY ENRICHMENT & ORGANIZATIONAL DEVELOPMENT
   Deadline in July, awarded in October

4. CRITICAL COMMUNITY NEEDS
   Deadline in October, awarded in January

Grants are awarded four times a year, according to their area of focus. Applications are accepted all year, however each focus area has an annual deadline.

19-20 ANNUAL REPORT
I first met Jim when he was the President/CEO of H&R 1871. He had a special relationship with his many dedicated employees and because the company was located in the city of Gardner, Massachusetts, he had a great fondness for all things in and about that community on a personal level by giving his time and financial support to the many organizations serving Gardner. Jim was an extremely gifted business leader as a turnaround specialist, taking low performing companies and making them very profitable. Because of this ability, he joined Kirtland Capital Partners based in Ohio. It was also the very reason that was uniquely helpful to our newly created Foundation and to me personally, as its first President. The knowledge and friendship that he shared with me I will always treasure.

Jim’s entire family is imbued with the same spirit of community service. I met Jim’s wife, Peggy, through their membership in United Way’s Tocqueville Society and later his son David as a Board member of United Way and its Finance Committee. Later I met his daughter, Leslie who also sits as a member of the Foundation’s Trustees. While I never met Jim’s daughter Lauren, I felt as though I knew her from Jim’s many proud conversations about her entrepreneurial role in the creation of the Miracle Field and Miracle Baseball League in Acton. Both the facility and teams are designed to support the needs of children with disabilities.

Jim’s passing leaves a heartfelt void for his family, friends, community and all of us who knew him. He is truly missed.

Phil Grzewinski
Former President/CEO of the Community Foundation from 2001-2019

Last year, our North Central region lost a dear friend and a leader in business and philanthropy, Jim Garrison. Jim was a founding member on the Board of Trustees of the Community Foundation since its early creation in 2001. He fully understood the importance of the Foundation’s mission and purpose to create positive change in the community through permanent contributions and stewardship of contributors’ financial resources. Jim served on the Board for all but three years until his passing. He contributed greatly with his business knowledge and was a valued member of the Investment and Finance Committee.
Gardner, and the entire north central Mass area, was very fortunate when Jim Garrison chose to come to Gardner in the early 1990’s and resurrect the company that would become H&R 1871. Serving people is what Jim was about, never more so than when he and his wife Peggy adopted Gardner as their home town and we all realized how fortunate we were to have Jim in our greater community.

Jim was a very bright man who made everyone feel that he valued their input on every matter, because he really did. He always began and ended every meeting with a smile. No matter how difficult a situation may have just been discussed, Jim always left those in the meeting with a positive feeling about how it would be resolved.

My favorite moments with Jim were those when we would discuss our families. I know that the secret to all of Jim’s success is the way he viewed himself as a husband, father and grandfather. He was a truly happy person who looked at each day as another opportunity for something good to happen. That kind of attitude really makes a community better—Jim Garrison certainly made Gardner a better place to live.

Jay Drake
Community Foundation Trustee, Vice-Chair

It has truly been a pleasure and an honor to volunteer with Jim at the Board of the Community Foundation over many years. Jim joined the Board very early in the life of the CF and his talents and leadership as a Board Member and as Board Chair were instrumental in the growth and success of the Foundation.

Jim exemplified the ideal of civic engagement---he cared deeply about the North Central Mass region and was generous in giving his time, talents and resources to improve life in our area. Jim’s work with many area non-profits was always selfless and focused only on making things better.

The words that come to mind when remembering Jim are: integrity, intelligence, humble leadership, good judgment, community spirit and generosity. I know that I speak for everyone at the Foundation when I say that it has been an honor to serve with Jim and we will greatly miss his friendship and guidance.

Steven L. Stone
Community Foundation Trustee, Treasurer

Whenever I think of Jim Garrison, I remember how kind and welcoming he was to me, when I first came on the Board. In the years that followed, I learned to appreciate how perceptive he was, how aware he was of our community and its needs. This thoughtfulness, combined with his generosity and innate kindness, made him an invaluable member of our board. I am so thankful to have had the opportunity to work with him and am especially grateful to have had a chance to know this remarkable man.

19-20 ANNUAL REPORT 20
In 2020, Allie C. Thiel of Townsend was named the first ever recipient of the Patricia Thomas-Jeanig Fund at CFNCM. The fund, established in honor of Patricia Thomas-Jeanig, provides scholarships for students who are pursuing their Master’s Degrees in Library Science.

Patricia Thomas-Jeanig was a school librarian at Spaulding School in Townsend and member of the Townsend Library Trustees. She spent most of her adult life in education and volunteering at her local library. Patricia’s husband Walter Jeanig established the fund in her memory, as it was her wish to help librarians who seek to further their education. The fund distributes $10,000 a year over 5 years to one individual who has been accepted to a Master of Library Science program.

Inaugural scholarship recipient Allie Theil gained an appreciation for libraries early on. She had the chance to work in her own community as the first teen librarian at the Townsend Public Library. In this role she realized that she loves working with teenagers and was able to engage her creativity and interpersonal and information skills daily. Of particular note, she created the Youth Arts Collaborative, grant-funded after-school sessions in which she instructed a group of young people as they made and critiqued multimedia artwork.

Allie found the opportunity to implement programs that combine her strengths with the needs of her community to be immensely rewarding and decided to pursue a Master of Information Studies at McGill University in Montreal. Now in the second and final year of the program, Allie has focused on taking a broad spectrum of courses that will help her be an effective public servant. For example, she recently completed a course in web design.

“I know firsthand how needed tech-savvy librarians are in small institutions. In studying web design, I’m learning new skills that I can contribute on the job,” says Allie.

During her first year, Allie remained in good academic standing while also balancing three part-time jobs and helping design promotional materials for the Townsend Public Library remotely. She temporarily had to put work and internship opportunities on hold during the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, but she just recently accepted a full-time position as the Youth Services Librarian at the Millicent Library in Fairhaven, Massachusetts.

As she starts her new job and finishes her degree program remotely, Allie is thankful to have financial support through the Patricia Thomas-Jeanig Fund.

“This scholarship is of great assistance in helping me to fund my final year. I am so grateful to the Community Foundation and the Patricia Thomas-Jeanig Fund,” says Allie. “Pat Jeanig was my school librarian. I remember that library as a warm and inviting place, where I first cultivated my life-long love of reading. Being able to serve in her field, doing the work that she loved with the aid of this scholarship, is an honor.”
